About me

I am a management engineering student with a great passion for innovation, technology and entrepreneurship. Over the years I have had the opportunity to deepen and improve my skills, especially in the field of process and activity management and the development of innovative and sustainable projects. My greatest passion is perhaps to look for innovative activities, which can solve concrete problems and, at the same time, bear fruit from the personal and professional growth point of view. I have always tried to combine what has been said so far with my passion for technology, graphics and sustainability, looking for out-of-the-box solutions and taking part in projects and training and work activities related to these various sectors.
